About Me

L.E. Sells is an indie author with a passion (well, it's a borderline obsession) for writing delightfully smutty fictional romance in all forms. Particularly paranormal/supernatural romance and fantasy. She also loves writing contemporary fiction, but she can't seem to peel herself away from the monsters and the fairies to save her life.

Going to the Water was her debut historical fiction novel which she published in 2017; she had no idea what she was doing when she published this one. Like marketing? What's that?

Genesis is a Fanfiction novel that she completed in 2023 and is available on Archive of Our Own (AO3).

Kindred is her third novel to be published in October 2025. Genetic vampires? Sure why not, let's just sprinkle in some biting and BDSM for funsies.

L.E. Sells is a labor and delivery nurse of 15 years, which she loves, but there's not enough coffee in the world to keep up that job and writing full time. She lives in Northern California (yes there are beaches, no they are not as warm as LA or San Diego) with her two daughters (who are amazing) and husband (who is wondering if she'll ever get off the computer and hang out with him).

The drug was a lie. The hunger was real.

ELEVATOR PITCH

Trapped between the truth and what they know, a reporter and a vampire uncover why a drug is turning humans into bloodthirsty monsters.

BLURB

They told us vampires were a myth.

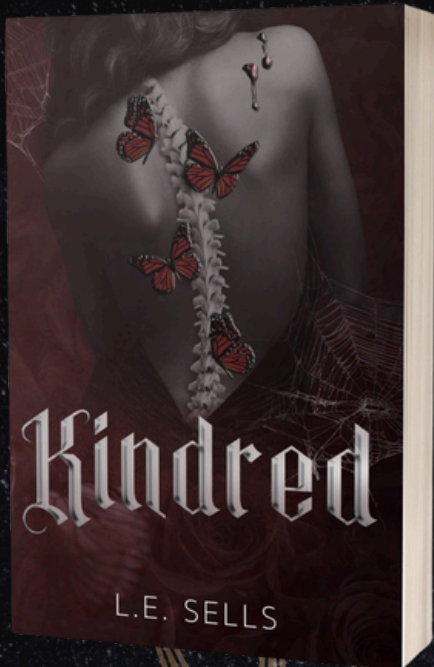

They lied.

Buried deep in human DNA lies a gene that awakens under trauma—unlocking a thirst for blood. Now, pharmaceutical giants seek to develop a drug to control it... but at what cost?

Yvonne Malone, an investigative journalist looking for the next big story, uncovers evidence that could shatter everything humans believe about themselves. The closer she gets, the more dangerous the hunt becomes—especially when she falls for the very thing she's working to expose.

Some truth can't stay hidden. Some love can't be denied. And some secrets demand blood.

IT WAS A COMPULSION TO CONSUME HIM;
TO HAVE EVERY PART OF HIM WITHIN HER
and it felt like absolute unbridled madness.

"L.E. Sells had me hooked from the start!
If you like atmospheric vampire tales with a strong heroine, moral ambiguity, and simmering romance, this one is impossible to put down."

Bound by secrets. Suffocated by desire. Imprisoned by monsters.

ELEVATOR PITCH

Enter the world of Elysia, where dragon and phoenix royals grapple for their seats upon the throne as humans advance with technology that rivals the animal shifters innate powers. Forbidden love and sworn enemies tangle together for survival and desire in this multi-POV cyber-punk romantasy.

BLURB

Hate is a flame.

Insatiable when coaxed by the slightest breath, hungry to incite inferno. And Elysia is burning.

Our world has always reigned between dragon and phoenix rule, living in harmony; though senseless war for power has divided us. But the heat of astral fury was nothing compared to the human machines when they appeared in our realm.

With weapons and bots, the humans brought Elysia to heel and now, we are disappearing...

Slowly like mist in a new rising sun and the strength of Elysia is faltering beneath the weight of the humans false light.

Fire meets steel in a war that begs sworn enemies to join for hope of saving the heart of Elysia.

There's no more room for mistakes.

Dragons and phoenixes must burn together, or Elysia will be lost to the flame.

Welcome to Ironsgate Penitentiary.
